Summary of the TV Series:

Season 1 of the Prime Video original series, Off-Campus, created by Louisa Levy, is based on the best-selling book series Off Campus by Elle Kennedy. The show takes place on the fictional campus of Briar University. The show follows four close hockey players; Garrett Graham, John Logan, Dean Di Laurentis, and John Tucker. Throughout the first season of the show, we see these characters as they begin to navigate their adulthood and relationships.

This first season ultimately focuses on Hannah Wells and Garrett Graham, and the story of their relationship. The season follows their fake-dating agreement that turns into a deep romance. This agreement or “the deal” revolved around Hannah’s crush on Justin Khol, a musician, and Garrett’s need for tutoring to pass his philosophy class. So, their deal was that Hannah would tutor Garrett, and Garrett would be Hannah’s fake boyfriend to make Justin jealous. Both Hannah and Garrett are dealing with heavy baggage and past trauma in their lives. Garrett was dealing with emotional and physical abuse from his father, Phil Graham. Hannah is a survivor of sexual assault, who is suffering with intimacy. As they both shared these past traumas with one another, they began to develop genuine feelings.

This season also begins to follow the relationship between Allie Hayes and Dean Di Laurentis. Allie is Hannah’s best friend, and Dean is a close friend and teammate of Garrett Graham. Allie and Dean’s relationship is more so a secret in comparison to Hannah and Garretts. Their attraction with each other begins during parties and social events, leading to their inevitable hookup. At this time, Allie is still dealing with her past relationship with Sean.

Overall, Season 1 of Off Campus focuses on friendship, trauma, personal growth, sexuality, and the development of their adult lives. This first season consists of 8 episodes, streaming on Prime Video. The series was renewed for season 2, which will shift focus to Allie and Deans' relationship as the main focus.

Summary of the Book Series:

The best-selling book series Off-Campus was written by Elle Kennedy. The first book of the series is The Deal, published in 2015. This first book of the series follows the relationship between Hannah and Garrett and is the main source for season 1 of the show, Off Campus. The Deal follows Hannah Wells, a music student at Briar University and Garrett Graham, one of the star hockey players at the university. Hannah has a crush on Justin, a football player, which is ultimately how Hannah and Garrett's 'deal' came to be. Their deal was for Garrett, who was struggling in their philosophy class, to be tutored by Hannah, while pretending to be her boyfriend to make Justin jealous. This arrangement between Hannah and Garrett is why the book is titled 'The Deal.'

Throughout the book, Hannah and Garrett's relationship shifts from fake to very real. They begin learning things about each other that most people don't know about. They ultimately become very trusting of one another after sharing these traumatic past events. Garrett becomes someone whom Hannah is comfortable with in an emotional and physical sense. Hannah gives Garrett emotional support, allowing him to realize that he will not become like his father, who was emotionally and physically abusive towards him and his mother.

Hannah and Garrett fall in love, but are forced apart by Garrett's father, Phil Graham, because he did not approve of their relationship and believed she was a distraction from hockey. Since Hannah doesn't want Garrett to lose his future or his relationship with his family, she breaks up with him. This is a big difference from the show.

In Garrett's devastation, he discovers the reason why Hannah broke up with him and confronted his father about it. This results in them getting back together at the end of the book. So, at the end of the book, Hannah and Garrett are happily back together, and the close friendships of Garrett, Logan, Dean, and Tucker are established, which continues throughout the book series.

Major Differences Between the Book Series and Show

1. Hannah and Garrett meeting for the first time:

In The Deal, Hannah and Garrett meet through their philosophy class when Garrett notices Hannah because of her strong academic performance.

In the show, their first memorable encounter was at the hockey arena, where Hannah works. She accidentally walked in on Garrett showering after practice. They later encounter each other again in philosophy class.

2. Justin's character:

In The Deal, Justin is a football player. Hannah has a crush on him because of his intelligence and difference from stereotypical athletes.

In the show, Justin is a musician. This connects him more to Hannah because of her personal interest in music.

3. Hannah's musical storyline:

In The Deal, Hannah is a music major and singer-songwriter. She is involved in the Pop-Music Showcase and works with a classmate, Cass.

In the show, Cass is removed and Justin becomes involved in Hannah's music. The show also makes Hannah's musical future more important by making her scholarship dependent on the Pop-Music Showcase.

4. Hannah's jobs:

In The Deal, Hannah works at Della's, a '50's themes diner, as well as Malones.

In the show, Hannah works at the Briar hockey rink and Malones, which is changed from being a bar the hockey players visit into a restaurant where Hannah and Allie work.

5. Dean and Allie:

In The Deal, the main story is Hannah and Garrett. Dean and Allie's romance doesn't happen until the third book of the series, The Score.

The show moves their storyline forward by developing Allie and Dean's relationship during Season 1.

6. Hannah's Attacker:

In The Deal, Hannah's attacker doesn't appear directly, instead she has an interaction with Rob Delaney, a friend of the attacker, who lied in court about what happened.

In the show, they made Rob Delaney himself as Hannah's attacker and making him a hockey player from a rival school St. Anthony's. This allows the show to have a more direct conflict between Garrett and Hannah's past.

7. Garrett and Hannah's Breakup:

In The Deal, Phil Graham is responsible for the breakup between Garrett and Hannah. He threatened to cut Garrett off financially if Hannah didn't break up with him, so she secretly broke up with him since she was worried about ruining his future. Garrett discovered the reason and confronted his father about it.

In the show, Garrett breaks up with Hannah himself. He fought Hannah's attacker during their hockey game, making him scared by his own violence. When Hannah told him his behavior scared her, he ended the relationship, worried that he might end up like his father.

8. The “hands-off” rule:

In The Deal, Garrett actually uses a campus-wide “hands-off” rule as a part of his attempt to get Hannah back after their breakup.

In the show, the rule is mentioned, but it was essentially a rumor started by the younger hockey team players.

The Main Characters

1. Hannah Wells: Portrayed by Ella Bright

Born: 2004

Gender: Female

Occupation: Student at Briar University & Waitress at Malone’s

Hannah Wells, the main character in the Prime Video series Off Campus, is portrayed by Ella Bright. Hannah is a straight-A student majoring in music composition. She is crushing hard on Justin Khol, leading to her striking a deal with Garrett Graham to have a fake relationship. He’ll pose as her boyfriend to make Justin jealous, and she’ll tutor Garrett to pass their philosophy class. Hannah is from Ransom, Indiana, and came to Briar University to pursue her dreams in music. She wasn’t the most outgoing and social girl in high school but attended a party one night where she was roofied and raped by the mayor’s son, Aaron Delaney. She reported the assault, and the case went to trial, but she lost the case to the status and support Delaney had for him. She began going to therapy to help her through her trauma, which was challenging for her. She lives on campus with her best friend, Allie Hayes.

2. Garrett Graham: Portrayed by Belmont Cameli

Born: 2004

Gender: Male

Occupation: Student at Briar University & Star Forward for Briar Hawks Hockey Team

Garrett Graham, the main character in the Prime Video series Off Campus, is portrayed by Belmont Cameli. The character Garrett Graham is the confident son of NHL star player Phil Graham. He is the captain and star forward of Briar Universities Hockey team. His character originally comes off as an intimidating and cocky jock who only cares about hockey and didn't have time for a relationship. As the season went on, it is evident that Garrett is actually a loyal and vulnerable character. When he was 11 years old, his mother passed away from cancer. His father was physically and verbally abusive towards him and his mother. We see his friendships with John Logan, Dean Di Laurentis, and John Tucker emotionally evolve throughout the season. They have deep and unexpected conversations about relationships. The love story between Garrett Graham and Hannah Wells is the main focus of season 1. We see a fake relationship turn into a deep connection from past trauma.
